HENRY C. WORK'S NEW SONGS.

THE MYSTIC VEIL.

Song and chorus, with illustrated title page.
Henry C. Work. Price, 35 cents.

This is the first of the three just written, and is as remarkable in subject as in treatment. Yet no description, no quotation, nothing save hearing it complete can give you an idea of its power. So easy and flowing that it seems to sing itself, the wonder is that a thing so simple can so affect you. As, however, you sing it over and over, you become aware that the secret of its power is—1st, That it is a heart lyric, and so goes straight to the heart. It is something more than an inspiration; it is the expression of a soul subsoiled by sorrow. 2d, It treats of a subject so enshrined in the lonely musings of the bereaved heart, that any other than the most delicate handling would seem gross profanation. It gives reverent expression to the universal longing of the human heart for communion with the loved who have passed within the Mystic Veil. Do their voices blend with ours in the sacred evening song? do their hands soothe the troubled brow? and is it their presence that diffuses in the soul a holy calm, till in subdued ecstasy we exclaim:

"Tell me, tell me truly, is it you, love,
Come to cheer my lonely heart?"

You will probably wonder how such a song as this can be illustrated. The angel that lifts the mystic veil has her finger upon her lips, and I must not tell.

SWEET ECHO DELL.

Song and chorus, with illustrated title page.
Henry C. Work. Price, 35 cents.

The incident upon which this is based, and the words complete, are as follows:

Three sons of a New England widow had long toiled in the Land of Gold, when this message reached them: "Come and see your mother before she dies!" They started immediately, but while crossing the Sierra Nevada, the youngest became ill, and in a few hours breathed his last. He was buried in a lovely spot, near the summit. The mother lived long enough to greet her surviving sons; but her mind wandered, and she never fully realized that Willie had gone before.

"Three there were that left my cot;
Two are here, and one is not;
Why does Willie linger? Say, can you tell?"
"He was weary by the way;
When we came he could but stay
In the shady grove at Sweet Echo Dell."

CHORUS.—Echo Dell! Echo Dell!
It was there we softly said "Farewell!"
And the towering granite crest
Nobly guards his place of rest,
Near the lovely lake of Sweet Echo Dell.

"Is he laden well with gold?
Does he bring me wealth untold?
Why then does he linger? Say, can you tell?"
"All his treasures are above;
All he sent you was his love,
With a whispered prayer from Sweet Echo Dell."
Echo Dell, etc.

"Coming homeward, does he sing
Like a lark upon the wing?
Why then does he linger? Say, can you tell?"
"Naught is heard but rippling waves,
Warbling birds, and shouting braves;
Silent is his voice in Sweet Echo Dell."
Echo Dell, etc.

"Is he coming by-and-by?
May I bless him ere I die?
Why then does he linger? Say, can you tell?"
"Mirrored in that mountain lake,
Heaven is near, and he will wake
Never elsewhere than in Sweet Echo Dell."
Echo Dell, etc.

"Would you crush my only joy?
Surely I shall meet my boy;
Why then does he linger? Say, can you tell?"
"Never will his weary feet
Travel more, yet may you meet
When your soul floats over Sweet Echo Dell."
Echo Dell, etc.

GRANDFATHER'S CLOCK.

Song and chorus, with illustrated title page.
Henry C. Work. Price, 35 cents.

The first verse and chorus of this quaint, comic-pathetic effusion are as follows:

My grandfather's clock was too large for the shelf,—
So it stood ninety years on the floor;
It was taller by half than the old man himself,
Though it weighed not a pennyweight more.
It was bought on the morn of the day that he was born,
And was always his treasure and pride;
But it stopp'd short—never to go again—
When the old man died.

CHORUS.

Copyright, 1876, by C. M. Cady.

These three songs are entirely different from each other, though all are in the popular vein. "Sweet Echo Dell" and "Grandfather's Clock" would both be pronounced very remarkable songs anywhere else than under the shadow of "The Mystic Veil." All three sent postpaid to any address on receipt of $1.00.

FRIENDLESS.

A descriptive piece of sheet music, with Solos for Soprano and Tenor, and Quartet for mixed voices. Words by O. A. Curtis; Music by T. Martin Towne. Price 50 cents.

This has already been tested in the concert room, and is pronounced very effective.

PARLOR GEMS.

This is pronounced the best book of parlor music extant. There can be no question about its being the latest and cheapest. It contains 60 Pieces of music, instrumental and vocal, together with the following original Charades for parlor performance, by H. L. Wait.

1. Romantic... 4 Acts. 2. Mercenary... 4 Acts. 3. Platonic... 3 Acts. 4. Domestic... 4 Acts. 5. Spellunacy... 3 Acts. 6. Washington... 3 Acts. 7. Dilute... 3 Acts.

The whole, elegantly bound in cloth, is sold at the exceedingly low price of $1.50. If after examining Parlor Gems you believe, as I think you will, that its excellence, elegance, durability and cheapness alike entitle it to a place in every musical parlor in the land, I wish you would take the trouble to mention the fact to your friends, and confer a favor on them and me, by helping to place it in every such parlor where you are acquainted.

CANVASSING.

To persons of good address who are out of employment, canvassing with Parlor Gems offers a pleasant and very profitable occupation. Canvassers at the East make from $5 to $25 a day. If you want to canvass for it, go to the nearest music dealer, who doubtless will be glad to offer you remunerative terms. In any case, however, be sure that you have the latest and hand-somest edition to canvass with.
